

USE OF SHOE ORTHOTICS IN CHIROPRACTIC PRACTICE

Principal Investigator: Jerrilyn Cambron, D.C., Ph.D.

To date, there are a few clinical studies describing the use of orthotics or the combination of orthotics and chiropractic manipulation for chronic low back pain. Despite a report that 72.1% of chiropractic physicians utilize some form of orthotics in their practices, little is known about their prescriptive experiences with orthotics or reasoning behind recommending orthotics. The purpose of this survey is to gain insight on the DCs in Illinois who prescribe the use of orthotics to their patients and the physicians' experiences with this type of treatment.
