CHIROPRACTIC TRAINING REQUIREMENTS, DEGREES, AND ACCREDITATION WORLDWIDE: A CROSS-SECTIONAL ANALYSIS

Principal Investigator: Claire Johnson D.C., Ph.D.

The primary purpose of this study is to summarize key characteristics of chiropractic degree-granting programs worldwide. This is a cross-sectional analysis of publicly available documents from chiropractic degree-granting institutions as of 2026. Information from the internet will be searched. Publicly available documents (eg, websites and catalogs) will gather information on program requirements and content. Academic leaders from each chiropractic degree-granting program will be contacted via survey to obtain any data that cannot be obtained from the websites or other reputable sources. The results will report key characteristics of chiropractic degree-granting programs worldwide.
