

Title IX Overview & Resources

NUHS will act promptly and impartially to address claims of sexual misconduct and discrimination in order to remedy the potential negative effects.

The needs of someone who has been sexually assaulted vary from person to person and may vary over time. NUHS has gathered and listed a diverse array of services and external resources, many of which may be accessed 24 hours a day, so that a person may choose what he/she may find most helpful and healing. NUHS urges anyone who has been sexually assaulted to seek support as soon as possible to minimize and treat physical harm, assist with processing the unique and complex emotional aftermath, assist in preserving evidence, and to understand options for pressing charges. Even for someone who does not wish to report the event to the police or pursue disciplinary action, seeking medical attention as soon as possible is important. A person that has been sexually assaulted has the right to seek a medical forensic examination free of charge.
